A close-up photograph of the binding of an old book. The image shows the spine on the left, which is made of a dark, textured material. The pages are visible on the right, showing a yellowish-brown color and some wear along the edges. The binding appears to be a traditional sewn-in style.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some faint smudges and discoloration, particularly along the right edge where it is bound. There is no text or other markings on the page.
